

The teaching of British Values is an integral part of our ethos. All members of our community are respected, valued and given opportunities to express themselves.

There are 4 key threads that we promote to ensure the children have a variety of experiences and opportunities which will prepare them for future life in Modern Britain, these are:-

- Democracy: children having views, valuing each other, talking about feelings, turn taking, sharing, working together and developing enquiring minds
- Rule of law: managing feelings and behaviour, consequences, learning right from wrong, rules
- Individual liberty: developing confidence, self-worth, self-esteem, taking risks, talking about differences
- Mutual respect and tolerance: learning about how you want to be treated, similarities/differences (families, faiths, community, culture).
